

Universitätsbibliothek
Johann Christian Senckenberg
Frankfurt/Main
Handschriftenabteilung

Nachlass Ludwig Börne

Briefe von Ludwig Börne an Jeanette Wohl

Nachl.L.Börne BVIII, Nr. 273, Bl. 282-283

„Billets“ von Ludwig Börne an Jeanette Wohl

Nachl.L.Börne BXI, Nr. _____, Bl. _____

Briefe von Jeanette Wohl an Ludwig Börne

Nachl.L.Börne BIX, Nr. _____, Bl. _____

The first thing I noticed when I stepped out of the train was the cold air. It was a sharp contrast to the warm, humid climate of the South. I had heard that the weather in the North was harsh, but I didn't realize how different it would be.
 The streets were wide and clean, and the buildings were tall and imposing. I had never seen anything like this before.
 The people here were different too. They had a different way of speaking, a different manner of dress. It was all so new and so strange. I felt like an outsider in a foreign land.

I had heard that the North was a land of opportunity, a place where anyone could make their fortune. I had come here with nothing but a few dollars and a dream. I was determined to succeed. I was determined to prove to myself and to the world that I was capable of anything. I was determined to make my name.

I had heard that the North was a land of freedom, a place where everyone was equal. I had come here with a sense of purpose and a sense of duty. I was determined to do what was right. I was determined to stand up for what I believed in. I was determined to make a difference.

I had heard that the North was a land of progress, a place where the future was being built. I had come here with a sense of hope and a sense of optimism. I was determined to embrace the changes that were coming.
 I was determined to be part of the new world that was being created. I was determined to be a part of the future.

I had heard that the North was a land of challenge, a place where everyone had to fight for their place.
 I had come here with a sense of
 determination and a sense of courage.
 I was determined to face whatever came my way. I was determined to overcome every obstacle. I was determined to succeed.

I had heard that the North was a
 land of opportunity, a place where
 anyone could make their fortune. I
 had come here with nothing but a few dollars and a dream. I was determined
 to succeed. I was determined to prove
 to myself and to the world that I was
 capable of anything. I was determined
 to make my name.

I had heard that the North was a
 land of freedom, a place where
 everyone was equal. I had come here
 with a sense of purpose and a sense of
 duty. I was determined to do what
 was right. I was determined to stand up for what I believed in. I was determined to make a difference.

I had heard that the North was a
 land of progress, a place where
 the future was being built. I had come
 here with a sense of hope and a sense of optimism. I was determined to
 embrace the changes that were coming.
 I was determined to be part of the new world that was being created. I was determined to be a part of the future.

I had heard that the North was a
 land of challenge, a place where
 everyone had to fight for their place.
 I had come here with a sense of
 determination and a sense of courage.
 I was determined to face whatever
 came my way. I was determined to overcome every obstacle. I was determined to succeed.

Printed and Published by Frederick A. DeWitt
 No. 101 Nassau Street, N.Y.

[Faint, illegible handwritten text in a narrow column on the left edge of the page.]

[Vertical handwritten text in the center of the page, possibly a date or name.]

main body of handwritten text, likely a letter or document, written in a cursive script. The text is dense and covers the right side of the page.

Handwritten signature or name, possibly "Hann".

Moritz Mayer
Schmapp

STUTTGART
16 FEB 1833

Sie muss. W. G.

Frankfurt

