The first of these is the fact that the population of the world is increasing rapidly. This is due to a number of factors, such as the increase in the life expectancy of the human race, and the fact that the birth rate is still high in many parts of the world. This increase in population
 has led to a number of problems, such as the
 shortage of food and shelter, and the increase in pollution. It is therefore essential that we find ways of dealing with these problems.
 One of the most important of these is the need for a more equitable distribution of resources.
 This means that we must find ways of ensuring that all people have access to the resources
 they need to live.
 This is a task that
 requires the cooperation
 of all nations and
 peoples. It is only
 by working together
 that we can hope to
 solve these problems.
 The second of the
 main problems facing
 the world today is the
 need for a more
 peaceful and stable
 international system.
 This is because the world is still a very dangerous place, and
 the threat of nuclear war is still very real.
 It is therefore essential
 reducing the risk of
 promoting a more
 The third of the
 because there is still
 a large number of people who are living
 in poverty and deprivation. It is therefore essential
 reducing poverty and
 a task that requires
 the cooperation of
 all nations and
 solve these problems.
